Explanatory Notes

- The Spent Convictions Act 1988 is applied at application for a WA National Police Certificate.
- This certificate lists national disclosable court outcomes and / or pending charges as well as traffic convictions from WA.
- Legislation in various states and territories and the Commonwealth of Australia restricts the information that can be disclosed about a person's court outcomes unless specific exemptions apply under law. Legislative exemptions can include specific types of employment, voluntary work, licenses or membership of a profession. The information provided will include all disclosable convictions of findings of guilt by a court.
- A NPC may also include supplementary person history information which could include outstanding matters such as warrants or pending court cases. It is important to note that, until an outstanding matter has been determined by a court it cannot be regarded as a finding of guilt.
- A pending charge is a charge of an offence that has not yet been disposed of by a court and can be disclosed in compliance with various State, Territory and Commonwealth legislation, and/or the policies governing the disclosure of pending charges by police services.
- It is not recommended that copies are made unless the person or organisation assessing the NPC can provide the individual with assurances that the contents of the certificate will be kept confidential, and the certificate itself is securely stored and disposed of appropriately.
- There is a time lapse between the recording of convictions by courts and the updating of police information and reference systems. This certificate only reflects the completeness and accuracy of these records on the date displayed on the front of this certificate.
- This check has been conducted on the basis of the name and date of birth details and/or fingerprints supplied by the person as provided above. Every care has been taken to ensure the accuracy of the check however, given the fingerprints are not taken by the police services in Australia in all instances, it is possible that the police information and reference systems may contain information recorded against this person under another name or alias.
